

At the library

Just a reminder the Calhoun Memorial Library has honor students from the Chetek-Weyerhaeuser High School on hand each Thursday afternoon to offer technology help. Students are available from 2:30-3:20 p.m. to answer questions about anything technology related, such as how to use a smartphone, Kindle or laptop or how to set up an email or Facebook account. If interested, call the library at 715-924-3195 to reserve a spot. And while making your call, please let staff know what device you need assistance with.

Teen Time is set for this Friday at 4 p.m. the Chetek library. The after-school program is targeted for kids ages 11-17 and includes craft making. RSVP to director@calhounmemoriallibrary.org if wanting to attend.

The next Beneficial Bites meeting is April 24 at 1 p.m. at the Chetek library. The program's topic is broccoli. The event is free and includes food samples and recipes. No reservation is required.

For more information about the library or its programs, visit calhounmemoriallibrary.org or check out our Facebook page.

"The Unchartered Flight of Olivia West," by Sara Ackerman. It's 1927 and America's fascination with flight has just taken off. For Olivia "Livy" West is a young pilot with a yearning to see the world by plane. Upon learning of the 2,400-mile Dole Air Race Livy vows to do anything necessary to take part. But this is 1927 and it made clear to Livy that this is a men's only race. Instead, she will be a navigator for one of the pilots in the perilous race from California to Hawaii. Sixty years later, Wren, Livy's great-niece, inherits a spot Hawaiian property and with nothing on it but a ramshackle barn. Needing money, Wren plans to sell the place, but looking at the old planes gathering dust in the barn, Wren instead sets out to learn more about her great-aunt and her historic flight over the Pacific.

New fiction

"Close to Death," by Anthony Horowitz. When Charles Kentworthy is found dead as a doornail on his doorstep, there is no dearth of suspects to choose from. Having just relocated his family to Riverside Close, a picturesque neighborhood hidden away from the big city and filled with sweet-smelling gardens, songbirds and serenity, the Kentworthys soon become the most hated people in the community, thanks to their screaming children, loud cars and plans for a gaudy swimming pool. But as awful as the family is, what could Charles Kentworthy have done to get himself murdered? Detective Hawthorne is on the case, and it may be his most difficult yet. Because how do you solve a murder case when everyone in the neighborhood is a suspect?
